Hanalei Yukutaru Aipoalani is a native—born and raised—of Hawai'i's second congressional district. His passion for improving and advancing the living situations and socio-economic conditions of the people of the second district stems from his personal experiences. He and his wife, Angie, are concerned about the future of Hawai'i and have sacrificed career advancements and an affluent lifestyle afforded by the fundamentals of Silicon Valley to seek this congressional position. In addition, they are intent on preserving the communal values instilled by the mere virtue of living in Hawai'i. Hence, Hanalei's return to Hawai'i and promising bid for the U.S. Congress.

Hanalei is an emerging democratic leader with a keen understanding of public policy. He is a principled centrist with a proven professional track record of consensus building. He is intent on working for the people, by the people, to restore confidence in the public's opinion of servant leadership.

Hanalei is a firm believer and practitioner of working in an inclusive and transparent manner. He holds true to the values and practices of bridging the ideals and philosophies of all, for the sake of creating and implementing sound and effective solutions that will better the living conditions of all beneficiaries. His work experiences, community service and action records, and national and international networks serve as the foundation that will support his work of the people of Hawai'i's second congressional district and the nation at-large.
